

ERASMUS+ CULTURE SURVEY

Surprisingly, the majority of the students who participated in the survey described culture relatively correct. They defined it mostly as totality of certain characteristics that belong to a type of community. As types of culture they are acquainted with they specified agroculture, culture of youngsters, renaissance culture, music culture, lingual culture, dance culture, art, gastronomy, architecture, etc.

On the question how they would present the culture of their town/region/country to their peers from the other countries and their homeland as well, they replied they would use techniques and means that are more understandable to the modern generations, for instance, powerpoint presentations, actualisation of cultural schemes but also by direct interaction with them(sightseeing, telling domestic stories and legends, describing local customs etc.)

The participants of the survey wrote that a culture could be evident in many forms, both material and non-material. The characteristics of a culture could be visible everywhere around us, in local customs(national costumes, traditional dances and songs) and tradition(often in trivial phenomena), history, literature, art, architecture, food and so on.

They were also asked in what life areas a culture could affect them. Some of them stated they can recognise cultural influences everywhere around them, especially in music, school, commuting, family, etc. Those students described that sort of influence as very continuous one. On the other hand, some students wrote they could not find any kind of cultural influence on their lives.
